

MORSE FEELS SURE OF A NEW TRIAL

So Declares Attorney Martin
Littleton in Petition to Court.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—"I am sure I will be able to secure a new trial for Mr. Morse, and I do not believe that the prison sentence hanging over him will ever be put into effect," today declared Martin W. Littleton, attorney for the convicted ice king and alleged bank wrecker, who has filed a demand for a new trial on the allegation that the jurors who tried Morse were allowed to indulge freely in whisky during the progress of the trial, that one of the men was on the verge of delirium tremens when he signed the verdict of guilty, and that another had been an inmate of the sanitarium.

Littleton declares that the trial judge himself declared the evidence was so complicated that it was hard to understand. "How, then," asked Littleton today, "could jurors who were constantly drinking weigh the complicated testimony and render a just verdict?" Littleton alleges that one of the jurors was under medical attention for over-indulgence in whisky on the day he declared Morse guilty.

The jurors, he said, were under the care of eight special officers sent here from Washington, instead of the regular court officers, and these men were constantly taking the jurors on automobile rides to Coney Island, where the officers treated them to all the whisky they wanted, the officers themselves drinking to excess, Littleton alleges.

He further declares that a great quantity of whisky was consumed by the jurors in their rooms at night, and that on one occasion the special officers guarding the jurors expressed their conviction that Morse was guilty, one of them going so far as to say to the guard that the guard would be allowed to take Morse to prison. Such things, Littleton declared, would prevent any man getting a fair trial.

He says he has affidavits to substantiate his charges, and believes he will be able to secure a new trial for the convicted banker.

TYPEWRITER FOLLOWS CONQUEST OF POLES

Remington Carried on Peary and Shackleton Expeditions to Ends of the Earth.

The Remington typewriter now lays claim to extending its conquest from Pole to Pole.

A Remington, according to D. B. McMillan, assistant to Commander Peary, was a part of the equipment of steamship Roosevelt on the explorer's expedition used in writing reports and in tation to the North Pole. The machine ulating scientific records.

Now news comes from London that Lieutenant Shackleton, on expedition, which reached a point within 100 miles of the South Pole, carried a Remington. On this machine were transcribed the records of the antarctic expedition.
